TACKLE REVIEW: The Mango "Bug head" Jelly Worm Jig.

by Lee De Bevoise (angler & editor www.fishdreams.com) "It's been a crazy month, to say the least. In any case, attached are two fish I caught with one of your lures. I waited, hoping that I could catch a different species or two...

No such luck. Bluegills are all that have been hitting - not even any catfish. Too much rain and cooler nights have put many of the local species off their bite. I'm no where near done fishing for the year yet! I have a nearby lake loaded with hybrid bluegills that are huge, but it's still too warm to coax them into biting.
